

Another view of the Bela Hidvegi Museum in Sopron, Hungary.

Norbert Ullmann (Germany) gave an excellent speech on behalf of SCI and the Ullmann Award.

not only the Ullmann Award but SCI as well, since he is the European SCI awards chairman. Frankly, I could not understand the language of most of the speeches, but Norbert's was outstanding (and in English).

There was a huge crowd for the opening, and later that afternoon the crowds really came, as the museum was open from 5 p.m. until after midnight. Sopron is only an hour from Vienna, Austria, so was very convenient (I flew into Vienna).

Elsewhere in this issue we have a report on the Nordisk Safari Klub Museum, and now you know about the two museums Bela has been responsible for in Hungary. A few years ago there was a report in OVIS about the wonderful natural history museum in Germany that our member Werner Lettl opened. All in all, our European members are certainly doing their part. GSCO is prominently featured in all of them!
